When a Computer Screen Becomes Your Canvas and a Mouse Becomes Your Brush Award-Winning Illustrator Franklin Haws to Exhibit at Savage City Art Wall through December

(Savage, MN) Digital illustration is a relatively new form of art that allows artists to bring to life a fictional world developed in the mind of an artist. Franklin Haws forms images that creatively reflect human emotions and the illusion of reality into original works of art, utilizes digital tools like a computer and mouse. It may sound easy, but it takes years of training and experience to develop skills as an Illustrator.

“As a digital illustrator, I've created art for children and adults. My topics include animals and wildlife, cars and airplanes, funny monsters and cuddly cats and dogs” said Franklin Haws, Illustrator. “I find true pleasure in creating illustrations based on stories and family appreciation for what is most important to them”.

Franklin’s imagination shines through in this exhibit with his illustrative construction of fictional children’s book characters and his creative interpretation of real-life objects. Franklin’s artwork appeals to all ages and provides amazing examples of how imagination can be expressed in the form of original artwork.” Denise Baerg, Chair Savage Arts Council.

Savage Arts Council is excited to share their first illustrative collection of work from Franklin Haws, an award-winning, professionally trained artist from Shakopee MN. Savage Arts Council organizes rotating City Art Wall Exhibits to provide the community free and accessible opportunities to experience fine art close to home. The community is encouraged to stop by Savage City Hall and view Franklin Haws’ exhibit now through December 30. Exhibit artwork and artist commissions for pet, hobby and home Illustrations are available for purchase and make great holiday gifts.
